

Open Scene Study

Answer the following questions as you plan out your scene. Your answers will give context to the scenes making it easier for you to “tell the story” of the scene. Don’t be afraid to get really creative and have fun!

1. What is the setting of the scene? (where are the characters)
2. What is the main conflict of the scene? (what is happening between the two characters)
3. Who are the characters? What is their relationship to one another? Do they like each other?
4. How does each character feel about the conflict?
5. What style of communication does Character A use? What style of communication does Character B use?
6. How do you plan on showing us these communication styles? (body language, vocal tone, facial expression)
